INTRODUCTION

I. Background

Recently the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) discussed the use and availability of personal protective equipment for pesticide applicators with the State Pesticide Coordinators, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), and the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH). A major reason for these discussions was the recent National Safety Council report that the rate of occupational related skin disease is highest in agriculture with a rate three times that of the next highest industry. These discussions indicated that there was a lack of information about where personal protective equipment could be purchased. The compendium was designed to meet this need for a nationwide listing of suppliers of personal protective equipment.

In developing this compendium NIOSH identified potential suppliers of personal protective equipment in consultation with the Industrial Safety Equipment Association (ISEA). NIOSH then contacted the equipment manufacturers for further information. The manufacturers contacted and those responding are identified in Appendix A.

II. Using Personal Protective Equipment

This guide will be of use both to pesticide applicators and those involved in assisting or training pesticides applicators, especially State pesticide coordinators and regulatory officials. Personal protective equipment alone will not prevent injury or illness and is only a single component of proper pesticide use. This should be realized by those using pesticides and emphasized by those providing training in pesticide use. Applicators and trainers should study not only the pesticide label, but also the Material Safety Data Sheet (MSDS). The MSDS can be obtained from the pesticide manufacturer and often provides more detailed information than the pesticide label, concerning appropriate use of personal protective equipment. However, both the label and MSDS often fail to address some very real problems with personal protective equipment. Major problems or concerns that are often not addressed on the label or MSDS are summarized as follows:

Product Variability Among Manufacturers

Personal protective equipment using the same generic material, but from different manufacturers, vary greatly in their effectiveness. Recent research has indicated pesticide breakthrough rates of gloves from one manufacturer can be ten times that of gloves of the same generic material from another manufacturer. Thus, a pesticide label or the MSDS stating PVC gloves are required may be insufficient. Whenever possible the users of chemical protective clothing or trainers should request the manufacturer's specific permeation and/or penetration breakthrough data for the pesticide to be used.

Mixtures

Most available data on permeation, penetration and degradation is based on the use of "pure" pesticides. However, in the field chemical protective clothing (CPC) is more likely to be exposed to mixtures and diluted pesticides. Thus, accurate prediction of performance when using chemical protective clothing with pesticide chemical mixtures and dilutions may be at best questionable. Testing of protective equipment should be performed using the actual chemical formulations encountered in the field.

Respirators

The selection of a respirator is not simple and is affected by many factors including pesticide, method of application, degree of exposure, etc. Therefore, the user should utilize all appropriate sources of information in making a respirator selection, especially pesticide label, MSDS, respirator manufacturer, supplier and extension officials. Maintenance and proper use are especially important with particular attention to servicing and replacement of filters/cartridges.
CAUTION: Only NIOSH/MSHA approved respirators should be used. All of them have a label on the device or its container with a NIOSH/MSHA approved label and number beginning with TC.

Decontamination and Re-Use

Most personal protective equipment cannot be decontaminated. Therefore, the useful life of personal protective equipment should be ascertained. Personal protective equipment reaching the end of its useful life should be disposed of promptly and properly.

Other Personal Protective Equipment

To prevent injuries:

- -- Use a face shield during operations such as mixing or where splash can occur;
- -- Use protective eye glasses in conjunction with face shield during mixing;
- -- Use safety footwear and headwear to prevent injury from falling objects;
- -- Use footwear that is impermeable to a specific pesticide to prevent pesticide penetration.

NOTE: All personal protective equipment should comply with the American National Standards Institute (ANSI) performance standards.

In summary, the previous discussion is a very brief overview of important issues involved in selection and use of personal protective equipment. The manufacturers, distributors and suppliers of the equipment are usually knowledgeable in the issues discussed. The purchaser of the equipment should rely on them to provide the necessary information to assure the safe, appropriate, and proper use of their products.

III. Organization of the Guide

The following information received from manufacturers and suppliers was organized under the following sections.

Section 1 - Protective Equipment Distributors and Suppliers by State

Section 2 - Protective Equipment Manufacturers and Sales Representatives by State

Section 3 - Sources of Chemical Protective Clothing Available by Fabric Type by State

Section 4 - Sources of Gloves Available by Fabric Type by State

Section 5 - Sources of Certified Respirators by State

Section 6 - Distributors and Suppliers of Personal Protective Equipment with Toll-Free Phone Numbers by State

Section 7 - Protective Equipment Manufacturers and Sales Representatives with Toll-Free Phone Numbers by State.

IV. How to Use Guide

Section 1 provides a listing by State of suppliers and distributors. This list provides addresses as well as telephone numbers. Section 2 provides the same type of list for manufacturers and lists their sales representatives when known. If one knows the fabric needed for their chemical protective clothing or gloves, then Sections 3 and 4 can be used to determine if there is a distributor, supplier, or manufacturer in their geographic location. This same information is available for respirators in Section 5. Once you know the personal protective equipment that you need is available, you can use Sections 1 and 2 to obtain addresses and telephone numbers. Also, you will probably want to check Sections 6 and 7 to see if the distributor, supplier or manufacturer has a toll free telephone number.

SECTION 1
PROTECTIVE EQUIPMENT DISTRIBUTORS AND SUPPLIERS BY STATE

This Section is organized by State and includes names of companies, addresses, and phone numbers for DISTRIBUTORS and SUPPLIERS of personal protective equipment. It lists equipment type that the distributors/suppliers carry.

SECTION 3
SOURCES OF CHEMICAL PROTECTIVE CLOTHING FABRIC AVAILABLE BY STATE

This Section lists distributors, suppliers, and manufacturers of CHEMICAL PROTECTIVE CLOTHING. It is organized by state and company alphabetically. If the reader knows what type of chemical protective clothing is required for a particular pesticide application he/she can check whether there are any distributors or manufacturers in their state. To get the address, the reader would go back to Section 1 or 2. For example, if the reader needs to purchase PVC clothing in the state of Kansas: look in this Section to find names of distributors or manufacturers, then go to Section 1 for the full address of the distributor or supplier. Go to Section 2 for manufacturers. There are a number of distributors in Kansas but no manufacturers of PVC protective clothing.

Types of chemical protective clothing listed in Section 3 are:

Butyl
Chemrel
Cloropel
Nylon Polyethylene
Polypropylene
PVC
PVC Nitrile
Tyvek Saran Coated
Tyvek Polylaminated
Viton

SECTION 4
SOURCES OF GLOVES AVAILABLE BY FABRIC TYPE BY STATE

This Section lists distributors, suppliers, and manufacturers of GLOVES by fabric type. It is organized by company and by state alphabetically and under each company lists the glove types carried. If the reader knows the type of glove required for a particular pesticide application, he/she can look for it in this section to find distributors or manufacturers in the state. Then the reader would go back to Section 1 or 2 for an address. For example if the reader is interested in neoprene gloves and wants to purchase them in the state of Georgia, he or she would look in this Section to find names of distributors and manufacturers and then in Section 1 for addresses of distributors or Section 2 for manufacturers addresses. In this case Section 1 lists protective equipment distributors in Georgia on page 166 and there are several who carry neoprene gloves. No manufacturers of gloves in Georgia are listed in Section 2.

Types of gloves listed in this Section are:

Butyl
Latex
Neoprene
Nitrile
Nitrile Rubber
Polyethylene
Polyurethane
Polyvinyl alcohol
PVC
PVC Nitrile
Rubber
Viton

SECTION 5
SOURCES OF CERTIFIED RESPIRATORS BY STATE

This Section lists DISTRIBUTORS, SUPPLIERS, and MANUFACTURERS of NIOSH/MSHA certified respirators by type. It is organized by state and company. For each company it lists the type of the respirator carried. If the reader knows the type of respirator to use for a particular pesticide application he or she can look through this Section to find it, to locate the state, and the name of nearest distributor or manufacturer. The reader would then look into Section 1 or 2 to find addresses and phone numbers for the companies.

For example if the reader is interested in purchasing a chemical cartridge respirator for pesticides in the state of California he/she will find several entries. The reader can go to Section 1 or 2 to find the full address. Because only very limited number of respirator manufacturers provided NIOSH with their distributors listing this section is less complete than the glove and chemical protective clothing sections. However it is likely that the distributors listed in Section 1 will carry the needed respirators. Also note that most NIOSH/MSHA certified respirator manufacturers have 800 phone numbers. The manufacturers can provide local sources of their respirators.

Respirator types listed:

Chemical cartridge for pesticides
Gas mask for organic vapors
Gas mask for pesticides
Particulate respirator high efficiency
Powered air purifier for chemical cartridge
Powered air purifier for gas mask
Powered air purifier for particulates
Self-Contained breathing apparatus (SCBA)
Supplied air type C respirator

GLOSSARY OF TERMS

ANSI:
American National Standards Institute

Chemical Protective Clothing (CPC):
garments, gloves, boots, coveralls, aprons, or fully encapsulating suits that protect workers from dermal exposures to contacted chemicals

Decontamination:
procedures taken to minimize contamination of people and equipment, minimize translocation of hazardous materials by external contamination, and reduce external contamination by removal, neutralization or chelation

Degradation:
a deleterious change in the chemical structure of a plastic

Exposure:
the length of time and dose of chemical or physical agent to which a worker is subjected

MSDS:
Material Safety Data Sheet

MSHA:
Mine Safety and Health Administration

NIOSH:
National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health

NIOSH/MSHA approved respirators:
respirators certified by the government to meet minimum performance requirements necessary to protect workers' health and safety

Penetration:
the flow of a hazardous liquid chemical through zippers, stitched seams, and pinholes or other imperfections in a protective clothing material

Permeation:
the process by which a hazardous liquid chemical moves through a protective clothing material on a molecular level

Personal protective equipment:
Equipment and clothing designed to control hazards. It includes hard hats, safety shoes, protective eyewear, protective clothing and gloves, hearing protectors, and various types of respirators, such as dust and gas masks.

Restricted use pesticides:
those pesticides available in the U.S. for retail sale to and for use only by certified applicators, or by use of others under the direct supervision of certified applicators

SCBA:
Self-contained breathing apparatus

Use life:
for SCBA, use duration of the device as specified on the NIOSH/MSHA approval label; for chemical cartridge and air purifying respirators (canister gas masks): time period in specific exposure situation after which either the sorbent becomes saturated or breakthrough occurs or the substance can be first detected; for the particulate filter respirator: time period after which there is an increased resistance to inhalation.
