DRAFT

This Information Resources Directory (IRD) identifies the major information resources at EPA. It also includes environmental resources outside of the Agency. This draft version of the IRD consists of the following sections:

- A. *EPA Information Systems
- B. *Non-EPA Information Systems
- C. *Data Services
- D. *EPA Contacts
- E. *Other Federal Contacts
- F. *Hotlines, Dockets & Clearinghouses
- G. *Environmental Organizations
- H. *Newsletters, Magazines & Periodicals
- I. *EPA Documents
- J. *EPA Libraries
- K. *EPA Acronyms
- L. *Functional Activity Index
- M. *General Reference

This directory is one of the first products of the Office of Information Resources Management's (OIRM) work on the Comprehensive Risk Information Structure Project (CRISP). CRISP will promote the awareness of information and facilitate the access and integration of risk-related information resources across the Agency. This IRD provides the structural foundation necessary to integrate and access those Agency-wide information resources.

In its present draft form, this IRD is a dynamic, open-ended document. During the current review process, additional information will be gathered and comments from potential users will be incorporated. Comments and suggestions are welcomed and encouraged.

Approximately every six months, new copies of the IRD will be printed and distributed across the Agency. Plans are being made to coordinate the distribution of this Directory with the EPA Headquarters Telephone Directory.

General comments or more specific remarks on the contents or accuracy of the IRD entries can be directed to either of the following persons:

CONTACT: Bosch, John

(919) 541-5583

OAR, Office of Air Quality Planning and
Standards, Monitoring and Data Analysis
Division, National Air Data Branch

AIRS is currently under development and the basic system replaced SAROAD in mid FY 1987. AIRS is used by Regional Offices for data input, retrieval, and analysis of data generated by agencies that have not established direct access to AIRS. AIRS is being developed to provide current SAROAD capabilities for editing, validating, storing, analyzing and retrieving of air quality data as well as additional capabilities made possible by utilizing ADABAS. Conversion to FIPS geographical codes is being done during the conversion to AIRS.

KEYWORDS: AIR POLLUTION, STATIONARY SOURCES OF AIR POLLUTION, COMPLIANCE

CONTACT: Wright, Howard

(202) 475-7034

OAR, Office of Air Quality Planning and
Standards, Stationary Source Compliance
Division

The Compliance Data System (CDS) is an automated management information system that stores, sorts and reports compliance data for approximately 60,000 stationary sources of air pollution that are subject to air quality regulations. CDS provides a system for tracking compliance and enforcement information to assist EPA in carrying out its enforcement and surveillance programs concerning stationary sources of air pollution.

This System is required to track the processing of all EPA grant applications, prospective wastewater treatment construction projects, and active grant projects in the Agency. Activities of both Headquarters-processed and Regional office-processed grant programs are monitored. Office of Water Programs personnel in regional offices and grants administration personnel in Headquarters offices use GICS for operational control. Data are from State, Regional, and Headquarters offices. These data indicate such activities as conclusion of wastewater treatment plant construction.

The NEEDS System is the basis of the biannual Needs Survey Report to Congress required by sections 205(a) and 516(b)(1) of the Clean Water Act. It is a joint effort of EPA and the States to assess the capital investment required to build or improve municipal wastewater treatment facilities. It also includes a projection of the potential level of Federal investment in these facilities if these needs were fully funded in accordance with the provisions of the Clean Water Act. All needs estimates must be documented in accordance with EPA's 1986 Needs Survey guidelines. Approximately 33,000 facilities are included in this survey.

The National Cartographic Information Center (NCIC) collects, sorts and describes all types of cartographic information from federal, state, and local government agencies. It is the public's primary source for cartographic information, and helps find maps of all kinds - and much of the data and material used to compile and print them. NCIC staff will inform you about maps and other cartographic information you can obtain from many government sources. They will search their vast holdings of maps and cartographic information. US GeoData tapes are computer tapes which contain cartographic data in digital form. The data are available in two forms. The graphic form can be used to generate computer-plotted maps. The topologically-structured form is suitable for input to geographic information systems for use in spatial analysis and geographic studies. The Map and Chart Information System (MCIS) is a high-speed computer system of NCIC that helps find the right map or chart quickly and accurately.

LIBRARY COLLECTIONS

The EPA Headquarters Library has a multidisciplinary collection including books and reports on environmental issues, law, policy, regulations, computer technology and business. In addition to the Main Collection, several special collections, journals, microforms, and indexes provide users with a wide variety of information resources.

HAZARDOUS WASTE COLLECTION

The Hazardous Waste Collection consists of books, journals, EPA reports and OSWER directives. It is shelved as a separate collection and does not circulate. Access is provided through the library catalog as well as a user friendly microcomputer database.

MANAGEMENT COLLECTION

The management collection consists of books, journals videotapes, audiotapes and Federal agency reports. It is shelved as a separate collection with copies of the quarterly management bibliographies and newsletters. The library catalog can be used to identify books by subject, author, and title.

MICROFICHE COLLECTIONS

A variety of information is available at the library on microfiche. The "Pathfinder to the Microfiche Collection at the Headquarters Library" is available near the microfiche readers and explains the types of collections available. Two important collections are described below:

CONGRESSIONAL INFORMATION SERVICE

CIS identifies, collects and indexes the working papers or publications of congressional committees and subcommittees. The CIS Abstracts located in the Indexes and Abstracts section of the library provides detailed indexes to the legislation, hearings and committee prints which are available in the microfiche collection.

ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT STATEMENTS

The microfiche collection of environmental impact statements contains documents prepared by federal agencies regarding the impact of their proposals for legislation and other action which affect the quality of the environment. These documents are indexed in the EIS Digest of Environmental Impact Statements, located in the Abstract and Indexes section of the library.

JOURNAL COLLECTION

The journal collection consists of current periodicals covering research and development, environmental subject areas, policy, news, and government activities. Access to journal articles is provided through a variety of journal indexes such as Chemical Abstracts, Environmental Bibliography, Public Affairs Information Service (PAIS) as well as through computerized literature searches for EPA employees.

VERTICAL FILES

A collection of articles, brochures, and interesting news items is available near the circulation desk covering popular environmental topics. This is a good place to start for general information on newsworthy environmental topics. This file is useful for quick reference and is also used heavily by students and people with a general interest in a certain issue.

REFERENCE COLLECTION

The reference collection contains books and directories intended to answer a variety of questions. The following lists a few of the most useful and frequency used sources:

Directories

Encyclopedia of Associations Gale Research Company

This directory contains a comprehensive listing of organizations covering 18 broad subject areas. It is very useful for locating addresses, phone numbers, services and the date and location of annual meetings for obscure as well as established organizations. A keyword index makes it useful for identifying groups by subject.

Reference questions answered: When is the American Medical Association's annual meeting? What groups would have information about the bicycle as an alternative to automobiles?

Washington Information Directory Congressional Quarterly

Annual compilation of information sources in the federal government, including Congress and the private, non profit sector in Washington, D.C. Includes very helpful tables and information about the structure of other government agencies.

Conservation Directory National Wildlife Federation

This directory contains information about environmental organizations. It includes a listing of universities with environmental programs, sources for environmentally oriented audiovisual materials, national parks and wildlife refuges & Canadian citizen organizations & government agencies.

Fact Books

The World Almanac and Book of Facts Pharos Books

The world almanac is an easy to use source for quick factual information. It answers questions regarding important dates in history, demographic information on U.S. cities, and climactic data for various cities and regions. It is a quick way to review Environmental Quality Indexes, Hazardous Waste Sites and the list of Very Toxic Chemicals.

The State of the States Fund for Renewable Energy and the Environment

Each annual issue of the State of the States selects a variety of environmental topics and compares each of the States in terms of program strength, effective models and provides a general profile of state environmental policies. It is a good source for statistics on state research programs, legislation and facilities.

REGULATION

Federal Regulatory Guide Congressional Quarterly

This book gives extensive profiles of 13 government agencies and less detailed descriptions of 90 regulatory organizations. It is very useful for its overviews of the regulatory process.

Answers the common questions "What is the history of EPA?" and "Where can I find a summary of major EPA legislation?".

Code of Federal Regulations (on compact disk)

The Code of Federal Regulations and the Federal Register are available in the library in paper copy and microfilm. In addition, an electronic version of the CFR is available at the public microcomputer workstations. Electronic access is useful for locating obscure references in the CFR as well as analyzing vocabulary used in regulations.

LEGISLATION

Codification of Presidential Proclamations and Executive Orders Office of the Federal Register

This index to executive orders is arranged in 50 general subject areas, similar to the Code of Federal Regulations.

Congressional Record Government Printing Office

The congressional record is available from 1970 to the present in microfilm and paper copy.

Shepards Acts and Cases by Popular Name Shepard's, Inc.

This is an important tool for finding bills and laws by their popular name. It will provide the public law number and US Code citation which make it possible to locate the text of the bill in other sources.

US Code of Congressional and Administrative News

Full text of bills as enacted.

STATISTICS

Statistical Abstract of the United States Bureau of the Census

This is the standard summary of social, political and economic statistics for the United States.

U.S. Industrial Outlook Department of Commerce

Overview of the current status and anticipated growth of most manufacturing and service industries. Each chapter contains a broad overview of the industry and forecasts for development.

RESEARCH GUIDES AND BIBLIOGRAPHIES

The library produces several research guides and bibliographies as tools for more in depth research. These documents organize the current literature on major topics. Current bibliographies exist for waste minimization, risk assessment, management and communications, chemical emergency preparedness, asbestos and estuarine management to name a few. In addition, library pathfinders guide the researcher to the libraries special collections and to other resources within the agency. The "Pathfinder to Major EPA Dockets" and the "Pathfinder to the Microfiche Collection" are examples.

Functional Activity Index

This index is a preliminary listing of activities in which EPA is engaged. This draft is essentially an alphabetical listing of major categories of EPA activities with detailed subcategories where possible. This index will grow as comments from various offices across the Agency are incorporated.

Once completed, this listing will serve several purposes:

- Matching Activities With Required Data. It will be the basis for future analyses designed to determine the types of data needed to perform various EPA activities. It will also help to identify the data currently lacking and the data collection efforts necessary to meet previously defined data needs.
- Matching Activities with EPA Organization. This index will also help to match activities with the program, media and research offices where they are performed.
- Developing a Common Understanding of Activities. By defining the activities supported across the Agency, this Index will promote common terms used to describe those activities.

M. General Reference

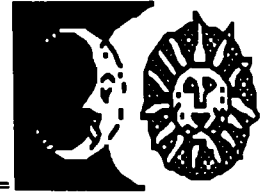

Section M

General References

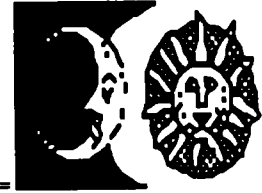

This section consists of the following information reference sources not found elsewhere in this Directory:

- EPA Organizational Charts: This portion of the General Reference Section includes organizational charts of all Agency offices, down to the Division level.
- "When All Else Fails": This portion of the General Reference Section provides responses to many common requests for information across the Agency. Much of this section is dependent on the typical information requests received by the Public Information Center (PIC). It provides information on the most frequently requested EPA publications including where to obtain copies. These pages should be referred to when all else fails.
- EPA Mail Code Index: This Index is an alphabetical listing that provides easy reference to EPA Mail Codes by program, media, and research office. This index can be used in conjunction with the EPA Headquarters Telephone Directory for quick access to EPA personnel.

Acknowledgements: The mail code index was compiled by the Washington Information Center (WIC).

AUTHORIZED EPA REGIONAL ORGANIZATION

* Alternative Regional organization may reflect Management Division concept.

 Alternative Regional organization may reflect a single Division including Air and Waste Management functions.

When All Else Fails. . .

This portion of the General Reference Section provides responses to many common requests for information resources. Access to good sources for basic information about the Agency is provided by the Public Information Center (PIC). PIC is willing to distribute informational documents to the general public from any and all program offices. PIC encourages program offices to send documents of potential interest to the general public to PIC for distribution. This section should be referred to when all else fails.

Annual Budget (EPA)

A copy of EPA's Annual Budget is usually available by February for the following fiscal year. The Office of the Comptroller provides both a summary document as well as the entire justification of appropriation estimates for the Committee on Appropriations.

A copy of the Budget or Summary of the Budget can be obtained by calling 475-8340.

'Annual Report' (EPA)

EPA does not produce a comprehensive annual report per se. The closest thing to an Agency-wide annual report is the Council on Environmental Quality's Annual report. This report can be obtained by calling CEQ at 395-5750.

Some individual program offices produce their own "annual reports". Among that group are the following offices: • ORD, • The Inspector General's Office, • OSWER, and • OW.

Environmental Impact Statements

There are numerous sources where Environmental Impact Statements may be obtained. The following sources may be referenced:

- Headquarters Library: The Library maintains an index of Environmental Impact Statements on microfiche.
- Office of Federal Activities: The Office of Federal Activities handles the Agency's environmental impact statements.

When All Else Fails. . .

Environmental Statutes

Copies of environmental legislation may be obtained from a number of sources:

- Corresponding Dockets: Many dockets have copies of legislation related to their particular focus. (For example, the RCRA/CERCLA Docket has copies of the Superfund Amendments, etc.)
- Program Offices: Some program offices that do not maintain dockets often have copies of pertinent legislation available.
- Government Printing Office: This Office has copies of all legislation available free of charge. You can request copies of any and all legislation by sending a written request to the Government Printing Office.
- Congressional Document Room: Copies of Legislation, Reports, Bills, and Slip Laws can be obtained by writing to either of the following addresses:

Senate Document Room
Hart Senate Office Building, B-04
Washington, DC 20510
224-7860

or

House Document Room
U.S. Capital
H-226
Washington, DC 20515
225-3456

EPA Orders & Assorted Manuals

Most of these documents can be obtained by calling the Distribution Center at 382-5797. A more detailed list of the publications available at the Distribution Center can be found in the EPA Documents Section (Section I) of this Directory.

When All Else Fails. . .

Federal Register Notices

Federal Register Notices that are less than one year old can be obtained from the Regulatory and Information Branch (382-7204). Federal Register Notices are also available from the Federal Register Office, Indexing Section at 523-5227.

GAO Documents (EPA-related Studies)

It is possible to obtain copies of all EPA-related studies conducted by the Government Accounting Office (GAO) by calling 275-6241. Requests for copies of EPA-related GAO Reports should be sent to:

U.S. General Accounting Office
P.O. Box 6015
Gaithersburg, MD 20877

The first five copies of each report are free. Additional copies are $2.00 each. GAO has conducted studies on a wide variety of issues of concern to the Agency. A comprehensive list of EPA-related studies from fiscal 1984 to the present may also be obtained, free of charge, by calling GAO.

Guide to EPA Libraries & Information Services

This Guide outlines EPA Libraries across the country. Highlights of this document are provided in the EPA Libraries Section (Section J) of this Directory. Copies of the full document can be obtained by calling the Information Management & Services Division (OIRM, OARM) at 475-8710.
