The APTD (Air Pollution Technical Data) series of reports is issued by the Office of Air Programs, Environmental Protection Agency, to report technical data of interest to a limited number of readers. Copies of APTD reports are available free of charge to Federal employees, current contractors and grantees, and non-profit organizations as supplies permit from the Office of Technical Information and Publications, Environmental Protection Agency, Research Triangle Park, North Carolina 27711 or from the National Technical Information Service, 5285 Port Royal Road, Springfield, Virginia 22151.

Office of Air Programs Publication No. APTD-0907

ABSTRACT

The SAROAD (Storage and Retrieval of Aerometric Data) Station Coding Manual identifies areas of the United States and their associated codes used in operation of the National Aerometric Data Bank. Station identification is one phase of the overall SAROAD system.

Key Words: SAROAD, Aerometric Data, Sampling Site, Codes, National Aerometric Data Information Service, Data System.

S A R O A D STATION CODING MANUAL FOR AEROMETRIC SAMPLING NETWORKS

INTRODUCTION

This is a revision of the initial SAROAD Station Coding Manual published in 1966. The first manual was prepared using the Bureau of Census state reports for 1960. This revision is an update of the 1966 coding structure, using the Bureau of Census state reports PC (VI) series for 1970.

Station coding and site identification is a vital part of the overall Storage and Retrieval of Aerometric Data (SAROAD) system of the Environmental Protection Agency. This scheme is used internally and by many state and local agencies in providing input to the National Aerometric Data Bank. Sampling sites must be uniquely identified if the data are to be interpreted properly.

The state code numbers were assigned sequentially to an alphabetical listing of state names. For compatibility within the system, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico were also assigned state numbers. Within each state, all cities with a population of 2,500 or more, and all counties, were assigned a unique number. Room was left between consecutively assigned numbers for insertion of new stations as communities grow.

Those cities listed in the 1960 Census books as having a population over 2,500, but not listed at all in the 1970 Census reports, have been omitted from this publication. It is assumed that these places have been combined with other areas and given a new name, or that they have been incorporated into adjoining cities.

Many cities that were not listed in the 1960 Census reports have shown increases in population and are listed in the 1970 Census books as having a population over 2,500. These places have been put in the alphabetical sequence for their state and assigned proper codes. More than 1,500 new names have been added to the coding structure.

Some cities shown in the 1960 Census reports as having a population over 2,500 have dropped below the 2,500 figure in the 1970 Census reports. These places are retained in this publication and have the same assigned code they had in the 1966 publication.

Also shown in this manual are the names and codes for the National parks within their respective states.

Asterisks preceding names in the coded tabulations designate counties, with the following exceptions:

Alaska - Election District

Connecticut - Regional Planning District

Louisiana - Parish

Maine Regional Planning District

Massachusetts - Regional Planning District

Under this nationwide station coding system, each aerometric sampling site is identified by a 9-digit number. The first 2 digits designate the state; the next 4 digits the city or county; and the last 3 digits identify discrete sampling sites within the city or county. The 3-digit code designating site number makes it possible to code up to 999 different sites within each city or county; however, that code is not included in this manual.

Through use of the standard Storage and Retrieval of Aerometric Data system, a National Aerometric Data Bank has been created. The bank currently contains information on over 4,000 sites across the country, and is growing each month as agencies continue to send in their data. From the bank, the National Aerometric Data Information Service (NADIS) provides this aerometric data for Federal, state, and local needs.
