FEDERAL EDUCATIONAL RESOURCES DIRECTORY

The Greater Kansas City
FEDERAL EXECUTIVE BOARD

Created to Increase the Economy and Effectiveness of Federal Programs and Foster Community Outreach
726 Minnesota Avenue, Kansas City, Kansas 66101 (913) 236-3801

Dear Students and Teachers:

We are pleased to share with you our Federal Educational Resources Directory. It is designed to assist you in identifying and accessing information about Federal agencies and their programs that might be of value in your curriculum, school projects or special programs.

Most of the 123 regional Federal agencies located in Kansas City serve Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa. These agencies have numerous educational and informational resources, and the resources of a select number of those agencies are outlined in the following pages of this Federal Educational Resources Directory. We have also included career occupations and described how to apply for Federal employment.

The Directory is a product of the Federal Executive Board's Public -- Private Sector Subcommittee which leads the Federal Government's school -- community partnership effort. The FEB is made up of agency executives that coordinate humanitarian and public service activities within the Federal community and Kansas City metropolitan area.

We would like to acknowledge the special contributions of a number of organizations:

- The Environmental Protection Agency, Office of Public Affairs for the concept and compilation of contributed material and cover design
- The Federal Aviation Administration and A•S•K Associates for the typesetting and layout
- The Office of Human Development Services for management of the project
- The members of the Federal Executive Board's Public -- Private Sector Subcommittee for the concept and execution of the project
- And the members of the Federal Executive Board for their funding support.

We hope that new partnerships will result from your use of this Directory and that the information will be helpful to you in the teaching and learning process.

Sincerely,

Cynthia A. Hillman

Cynthia A. Hillman, Chairman
Federal Executive Board

Linda J. Carson

Linda J. Carson, Chairman
Public -- Private Sector Subcommittee

HOW TO USE THIS DIRECTORY

Every Federal agency in the Kansas City area that submitted a tabulation of educational resource materials and services to the FEB is listed in this book in alphabetical order.

Each agency listed a contact and a brief mission description, as well as a chart describing their available educational resources by grade level and category. Once you find the agency, or agencies, from which you wish to obtain information, contact them to enrich the learning process in the classroom.

If you are doing research, or just looking for information, and unsure which Federal Agency to contact, you can call the National Federal Information Center, P.O. Box 600, Cumberland, Maryland 21501-0600 (toll-free 1-800-735-8004). The Federal Information Center has informative literature; federal forms; and information on copywriting, patenting and registration of trademarks.

To obtain Federal publications locally, visit or contact the Government Book Store, 5600 East Bannister Road, Kansas City, Missouri, 64131 (816-765-2256).

For additional guides or information contact the FEB, 726 Minnesota Avenue, Kansas City, Kansas, 66101, (913) 236-3801.

FEDERAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Each year the Federal government hires more than 300,000 people. Few other employers can match the advantages that working for America has to offer. Working for the Federal government presents a wide range of challenges with the potential to affect the lives of many people. The very scope of the government creates an environment that encourages creativity and professional growth while providing for the security, safety, and well being of the American people.

Most Federal positions are in the competitive service. This means that applicants must compete with one another by means of a written test and/or evaluation of the applicant's experience and education. This competitive process is administered by the U.S. Office of Personnel Management. Competitive positions may be found in national parks, hospitals, laboratories, shipyards, offices and many other locations. Most jobs that exist in the private sector may also be found in Federal service.

For those interested in Federal service immediately after high school, the most common avenue to gain entry into the Federal service is through the Clerical and Administrative Support examination. Many employees in top jobs in the Federal government began their careers in clerical and administrative support positions. The best opportunities are available for Clerks, Grades 2 through 4, and Secretaries, Grades 3 and 4.

For those going on to college, entry level professional, technical and administrative positions are commonly filled through the "Administrative Careers with America Examination." This program offers the chance to compete for challenging entry level jobs that exist throughout the government. Opportunities for employment vary among occupational groups. Projections are that the greatest number of future employment opportunities will be in the following occupational areas: Business, Finance and Management; Personnel Administration and Computers; Benefits Review; Tax and Legal; and Law Enforcement and Investigations. A comprehensive list of Federal service occupations and the college majors necessary to qualify for the positions is listed in this directory to help the reader select a college major suitable for related government positions or occupations.

Weekly, the U.S. Office of Personnel Management publishes job opportunities available in the competitive service. The Federal Job Opportunity Listing provides a list of current competitive positions for which applications are being accepted. This listing is available at Federal Job Information Centers, College Placement Offices, and local State Employment Service Offices. The list contains position announcements, where to write for application forms, and additional information. The phone numbers and addresses of the Federal Job Information Centers are in your telephone directory under "Government." The K.C. metro area office is located at 601 E. 12th Street, 1st floor, Kansas City, Missouri.

Exciting job opportunities await graduates (high school and college) in a variety of fields of interest. Within the Federal government there are opportunities to achieve goals, apply skills and fulfill interests. Whatever the field, the U.S. Government can provide an opportunity for employment.

Phone: (816) 426-7188

The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms has a unique opportunity to deter violent crime because of its varied jurisdiction. ATF special agents investigate violations of Federal explosive laws, including most bombings and many arson-for-profit schemes affecting interstate commerce. ATF also investigates violations of Federal firearms laws in an effort to prevent illicit trafficking, illegal possession and criminal use of firearms including their use in narcotics trafficking.

ATF is a participating agency in the U.S. Treasury Department Drug Demand "Project Outreach" program. Special Agents from the agency will take time to address audiences and explain the impact of drug abuse and suggest ways you can help support your community in the crusade against drugs.

The Combined Arms Command and Fort Leavenworth was established in 1827 by Colonel Henry Leavenworth. Fort Leavenworth, being centrally located along the Missouri River, achieved early prominence as an administrative and logistical center for frontier activities. Today Fort Leavenworth is home to the Army's Combined Arms Command, which consists of: the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College - the Army's Senior Tactical School; the Combined Arms Combat Development Activity - which focuses on how the Army should be organized, equipped and how it should fight now, and in the future; and, the Combined Arms Training Activity - which integrates Army doctrine and training.

Also located at Fort Leavenworth is the U.S. Disciplinary Barracks, the only maximum security military prison; the TRADOC Analysis Command - a research and analysis center for combat and training developments; and the Headquarters of the 35th Infantry Division, a five-state Army National Guard mechanized division.

The Region 7 Employment and Training Administration (ETA), within the Department of Labor, in conjunction with State Employment Security Agencies, administers the Unemployment Insurance Program, designed to pay benefits to qualified workers who are unemployed and looking for work, and assists the unemployed, or persons seeking new or better jobs, by providing counseling and placement services.

In partnership with the States, ETA also funds training programs, through the Job Training Partnership Act, for unskilled, economically disadvantaged or long-term unemployed individuals, that will enhance their employability and improve their earning capacity.

ETA also reviews applications for the employment of aliens within the United States and ascertains the availability of qualified U.S. workers to fill positions requested to be filled by alien workers. In addition, Labor Market Information is coordinated by ETA and provided to inquirers seeking employment/unemployment data, occupational wage data, and occupational information.

Within the Department of Health and Human Services, the Family Support Administration (FSA) is responsible for programs which strengthen the American family, especially low-income families. There are four major programs in the Family Support Administration.

- Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC)
AFDC is the largest cash assistance program serving needy families with children. Eligibility is based on the needs, income and resources of the family.
- Job Opportunity and Basic Skills Training Program
An education and training program aimed at AFDC families, to provide a method of avoiding long-term dependence on welfare.
- Child Support Enforcement
A Federal/State/local effort to locate absent parents, establish paternity when necessary, and establish and enforce legal orders for support.
- Refugee and Entrant Assistance
A program to assist refugees in becoming employed and self-sufficient. A major emphasis is on increasing refugee employment and reducing welfare dependency.

The Federal Highway Administration is a component of the Department of Transportation and is responsible for administration of the Federal-aid Highway Program. States, through their transportation departments, initiate, plan, design, construct, and establish their own priorities regarding the development of highway projects. FHWA officials provide technical assistance and grant approvals at key stages of project development if the project complies with applicable Federal laws and regulations.

FHWA officials are concerned with all aspects of highway development, with particular interest in: coordination with officials of other transportation systems; the environment; highway safety; and research. The Federal Highway Administration exercises Federal regulatory jurisdiction over the safety performance of all commercial motor carriers engaged in interstate or foreign commerce. Revenues derived from special taxes on highway users are deposited into the Highway Trust Fund to meet the Federal share of highway program costs.

Harry S. Truman National Historic Site was authorized by Congress on May 23, 1983, to, "preserve and interpret, for the inspiration and benefit of present and future generations, the former home of Harry S. Truman, thirty-third President of the United States." The National Park Service manages the .78 acre, 14 room Victorian home located at 219 North Delaware Street in Independence, Missouri. The home served as the "Summer White House" from 1945 to 1953, as well as the Trumans' retirement home.

The National Park Service provides interpretive services such as guided tours of the Truman home, educational programs for school groups, walking tours of the Truman neighborhood, free informational materials and off-site speakers. Information and material is available not only about the Truman home, but the National Park Service as well. The National Park Service is also involved in the national "Take Pride in America" campaign.

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) is the largest bureau within the U.S. Treasury Department. Its mission is to encourage and achieve the highest possible degree of voluntary compliance with tax laws and regulations. This is accomplished through effective communication programs which build public confidence in the efficiency and integrity of the Service.

Through the Taxpayer Education Office, programs are available to the public on various tax matters, starting with "Understanding Taxes" for high school students to seminars for CPA's and attorneys. The Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) provides training and assistance to college and community groups to help others prepare their tax returns. Outreach provides speakers on a variety of tax topics. Current tax issues are addressed to meet the needs of each group. It's Best and Small Business Workshops assist the new small business owner as well as provide quarterly workshops for the established small business.

The IRS Kansas City Service Center was established as a pilot Center in 1955 and now is the oldest of ten tax return processing centers in the nation. Each Center is responsible for processing individual, business, excise, estate, gift and other tax returns and documents of the citizens of this country. The Kansas City Service Center processes more than 23 million tax returns and more than 47 million letters each year for taxpayers in Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota and Missouri. The Center's staff is a part of the largest employer in the metropolitan area, the Federal Government, and it employs more than 5,500 during its peak season.

The Kansas City Service Center is a tax administration agency, but also has within its culture, the belief that service to customers must be a prime objective within the IRS mission. In addition to the mission and an obligation to the taxpayers of this country, the employees of the Center are an integral part of the communities in which they work and live. Their presence is felt through the Combined Federal Campaign, Emergency Food Pantries, March of Dimes Walk-A-Thon, community and church organizations and other individual and group volunteer efforts.

The National Archives Central Plains Region is one of twelve field branches of the National Archives which are located in major metropolitan cities throughout the United States. The National Archives is the collection of historical records, which documents American History from the first Continental Congress to the present. The mission of the Central Plains Region is to preserve federal government documents that are judged to have permanent value as records of our Nation's history and cultural heritage and to make these records available to the public. The records stored in the Archives come from a wide variety of government agencies and are an excellent educational resource for students (grade school through college). The National Archives Central Plains Region provides educational programs for students and teachers throughout Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska. The programs focus on the holdings and uses of the National Archives. Original documents, microfilm, slide programs, tours and demonstrations are used to enhance the learning experience.

The NLRB is an independent federal agency established to administer and enforce the National Labor Relations Act which establishes rights of employees concerning their union and concerted activities and regulates labor-management relations between private sector employers and unions. Its two primary functions are to: (1) investigate, prosecute and remedy violations of the Act by employers and/or unions; and, (2) conduct secret ballot elections in which employees choose whether they wish to be represented by a union for purposes of bargaining collectively with their employer.

The NLRB recognizes the importance of students, as future employees, understanding the federal laws governing the workplace and their rights concerning collective bargaining for their terms and conditions of employment. This knowledge, particularly when gained at an early stage or prior to entering the workforce, would help alleviate many misconceptions and reduce conflict in the workplace.

Region 7, Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) is an agency of the Department of Labor. OSHA was established as a regulatory agency under the OSH Act of 1970. It is authorized to conduct workplace inspections to determine whether employers are complying with standards issued by the Agency for safe and healthful workplaces. OSHA also enforces Section 5(a)(1) of the Act, known as the General Duty Clause, which requires that every working man and women must be provided with a safe and healthful workplace. Workplace inspections are performed by OSHA Compliance Safety and Health Officers who are knowledgeable and experienced in the occupational safety and health fields and who are trained in the OSHA standards and recognition of safety and health hazards. Similarly, states with their own Occupational Safety and Health Programs conduct inspections using qualified State Compliance Safety and Health Officers.

Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement

1103 Grand Avenue

Kansas City, Missouri 64106

Contact: Field Office Director

Phone: (816) 374-6405

The Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement (OSM) was created as a regulatory agency by the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977. The Act established a coordinated effort between the States and the Federal Government to prevent the abuses that had occurred with coal mining in the past. Two major programs were created by the law - an environmental protection program to establish standards and procedures for approving permits and inspecting current surface coal mining and reclamation operations; and a reclamation program for abandoned mine lands, funded by fees that operators pay on each ton of coal mined, to reclaim land and water resources adversely affected by pre-Act coal mining. OSM provides speakers to schools and civic organizations at OSM field office locations to explain the agency's programs. Agency videos and brochures are used in the presentations to provide a better understanding of what the agency does.

Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC)

2345 Grand Avenue, Suite 700

Kansas City, Missouri 64108

Contact: District Training Officer

Phone: (816) 556-1828

Congress created the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency during the Civil War. The National Banking Act of 1864 expanded the office to include a staff of national bank examiners to supervise, periodically examine and regulate the lending and investing activities of national banks. While the banking industry's methods and objectives have changed since its beginning, OCC's mission has not.

The mission of the OCC is to foster the safety and soundness of the national banking system. OCC monitors national banks' compliance with the law and promotes the competitiveness, integrity and stability of financial services. OCC ensures that banks follow sound management principles.

Midwestern district examiners supervise banks in seven states: Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Minnesota.

An active college recruitment program and cooperative education opportunities are offered. Through the district's outreach program, an understanding of banking and bank regulation is promoted.

The Kansas City District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, is entrusted by Congress with responsibilities in military and civil engineering, design and construction projects. These include major construction efforts for the U.S. Army and Air Force; water resources management projects, including flood control, the preservation of wetlands and other natural resources; and cleanup of hazardous and toxic waste at Department of Defense facilities. The Kansas City District was established in 1907, and is one of 36 Districts comprising the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The District's primary boundaries include parts of Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska and Colorado, but it has various responsibilities, particularly hazardous and toxic waste cleanup of Department of Defense facilities, in some 24 of the 48 contiguous states. The District is interested in educating the nation's young people about career opportunities with the Corps. These include disciplines ranging from civil and chemical engineers to geologists and environmentalists, computer sciences, legal, recreation, clerical and others.

Region 7, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), is the principal Federal agency responsible for programs concerned with housing needs, fair housing opportunities, and improving and developing communities in Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri. The agency was established in September 1965.

Although HUD administers many programs, the major functions of the department may be grouped into six categories:

- * HUD insures mortgages for single family and multifamily dwellings and loans for home improvement and purchase of manufactured (mobile) homes.
- * HUD channels funds from investors into the mortgage industry through the Government National Mortgage Association.
- * HUD makes direct loans for construction or rehabilitation of housing projects for the elderly and handicapped.
- * HUD provides Federal housing subsidies for low- and moderate-income families.
- * HUD provides grants to states and communities for community development activities.
- * HUD promotes and enforces fair housing and equal housing opportunity.

The U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission was established by the Civil Rights Act of 1964. The Kansas City Area Office is responsible for implementing the Commission's programs in the western half of Missouri and in Kansas.

EEOC enforces laws which prohibit discrimination in employment because of race, religion, color, national origin, sex or age. The Commission receives and investigates complaints from persons who believe they have been subjected to unlawful discrimination. If the Commission finds an employer has violated the law, an effort is made to resolve the matter through voluntary conciliation. If those efforts fail, the case may be litigated by the Justice Dept., EEOC or the individual who was subjected to discrimination.

Supporting the Congress is GAO's fundamental responsibility. GAO does this by providing a variety of services - the most prominent of which are audits and evaluations (reviews) of federal programs and activities. GAO examines virtually every federal program, activity, and function. Coverage ranges from missiles to medicine, from inventory control to arms control, outer space to inner city. The Kansas City Region carries out these responsibilities in Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Oklahoma.

U.S. Marshals Service (USMS)

811 Grand Avenue, Room 509

Kansas City, Missouri 64106

Contact: U.S. Marshall

Phone: (816) 426-3521

The U.S. Marshals Service was established September 24, 1789. For two hundred years the Marshals have upheld federal law and enforced the decisions of the federal courts throughout the United States. Today's Marshals protect the Federal Court system, track down fugitives, protect government witnesses and seize the assets from drug traffickers and other criminals.

The U.S. Marshals Service for the Western District of Missouri is an active participant at college career days for recruitment of Deputy U.S. Marshals. This district also provides speakers for various civic organizations and youth groups and schools; accompanied by audiovisuals, brochures and tin badges.

The North Central Region of the U.S. Parole Commission is responsible for deciding all parole issues for federal prisoners, parolees, and good-time releasees within its 12-state area. The Commission decides when, and if, release of federal prisoners to parole supervision is appropriate. It also decides the conditions under which one may remain in the community under supervision, if one's parole should be revoked, and if the violator should be returned to custody.

The Commission strives to protect the public by denying parole to eligible prisoners, releasing those whom it concludes no longer pose unwarranted risks to the public welfare, and by returning parolees to prison when it concludes that the public would be at risk if they remained in the community. The U.S. Parole Commission also supports and emphasizes alternatives to custody as efficient means of responding to misbehavior by people serving Federal sentences.

The U.S. Peace Corps is a Federal volunteer agency formed in 1961 by President John F. Kennedy. Since then, over 122,000 Americans have served, at the request of host governments, in 99 countries. Today, almost 6,000 volunteers are doing grassroots development work in 66 Third World nations.

The Peace Corps was created to promote world peace and friendship. Specifically, its goals are:

- * Help the people of interested countries meet their needs for trained men and women;
- * Help promote a better understanding between people from other nations and Americans; and
- * Promote a better understanding of other people on the part of the American people.

Recruiters and Returned Peace Corps Volunteers (RPCV's) are available to talk to classes, community groups or other organizations on a variety of subjects. Some recent initiatives include the World Wise Schools Program and the P.C. Partnership Program, which may be of interest to educators and civic organizations.

The Education Department at the United States Penitentiary, Leavenworth, Kansas, is responsible for providing viable educational and recreational programs to its inmate population. This in turn reduces inmate idleness and creates a more productive environment for both staff and inmates alike. This goal is accomplished by providing both mental and physical outlets such as: adult basic education, general education development, English as a second language, occupational education, social/adult continuing education, recreation programs, library services, and college degreed programs. Educational programs are available to assist inmates in achieving basic literacy and career skills. These programs include formalized high school, post secondary, pre-industrial, pre-release, and vocational training.

Contact: Regional Administrator

Phone: (816) 426-6108

The Women's Bureau is an agency within the Office of the Secretary, U.S. Department of Labor. In 1920, at the height of the industrial revolution and the Suffragist Movement in America, the Women's Bureau was created by Congress. The mandate of the Women's Bureau is: "To formulate standards and policies which shall promote the welfare of wage-earning women, improve their working conditions, increase their efficiency, and advance their opportunities for profitable employment."

The distinctiveness and diversity in the current and future labor force makes the mission of the Women's Bureau more important than ever before. Women's roles in society require them to be mothers and primary family caretakers, as well as employers or employees with demanding jobs and careers.

The Bureau has information and resources on women in the work force, career and life planning, training and/or retraining opportunities and resources, women in nontraditional careers, health and safety issues, affirmative action, and Workforce 2000.
