Impact of Operations

Federal agencies have a large impact on our nation's environment. According to the latest information from GSA's Federal Real Property Council, the U.S. government owns and/or operates more than 42,000,000 acres of land with 922,000 buildings, leases, and structures.¹ Federal land ranges from forests, parks, and historic monuments to office buildings, hospitals, hydroelectric dams, and prisons. Operations from all types of federal facilities can generate pollution, create waste and impact the environment.

Federal agencies, like other regulated parties, are required to comply with federal environmental laws, as well as other governments (states, municipalities, and tribes). Federal agencies must also comply with environmental requirements set out in Presidential Executive Orders. As of FY08, the EPA and states track more than 12,000 permits at nearly 11,000 sites, including underground storage tanks, community water systems, and air emissions sources.²

Energy Use

In 2008, the U.S. government consumed 1,104.8 trillion Btu of energy from sources including coal, natural gas, jet fuel, and electricity.³ Since 1975, the government has succeeded in reducing its reliance on nearly every energy source, especially that of coal, which has seen a 73.8% reduction. Even though overall energy usage has decreased since 1975, electrical usage has increased 36% since 1975. In 2008, the U.S. government consumed 193.8 trillion Btu of electricity.

In recent years, more and more federal facilities have teamed with organizations like the U.S. Green Building Council and Energy Star to improve energy savings, water efficiency, and environmental quality and stewardship. Over 50 federal entities, facilities, and agencies have earned certification under the Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design standard, known as LEED®.⁴ This certification, along with others similar in nature, demonstrates a commitment to reducing negative environmental impacts while increasing profitability and environmental health.

Toxics Release Inventory

EPA's Toxics Release Inventory \(TRI\) program collects information from industrial sources in the U.S. on the disposal or other releases and other waste management practices for over 650 chemicals. These sources include federal facilities that comply with TRI reporting requirements under a Presidential Executive Order.

The TRI totals for the 265 federal facilities reporting in 2008 increased by 1% (or 1.06 million lbs.) from 2007. The Department of Energy had the largest increase of 58% (or 2.86 million lbs.).

Compliance with Environmental Laws

Measuring Compliance

EPA and state regulators monitor activities at federal facilities to determine whether they are in compliance with environmental laws. Compliance monitoring enables regulators to measure and track compliance over time, identify potential problem areas and identify where compliance assistance is needed. EPA and states obtain information regarding environmental compliance primarily in two ways: 1) conducting on-site inspections and assessments, and 2) reviewing information in reports submitted by regulated facilities (self-reporting). Noncompliance can be measured in a number of ways, including the percent of facilities cited for:

- any violations, regardless of severity,
- significant noncompliance (SNC), and/or
- repeat violations

Beginning in 1993, EPA began to measure compliance at federal facilities by analyzing SNC events, such as major pollutant releases, and tracking “major” federal facilities. These facilities, due to the size or type of operations present, have the potential for significant environmental impacts.

Figure 3 identifies the compliance indicators this report uses to measure federal facility compliance. These indicators denote the percent of facilities that were not in SNC at any time during the relevant year. For ease of reading, the term “non-SNC indicator” is used in this report to describe such facilities.

A higher non-SNC indicator is better. The Federal Facilities Program non-SNC indicator is calculated as the number of facilities not in SNC divided by the number of federally reportable or inspected facilities, multiplied by 100. Readers may wish to use a number that reflects facilities that are in SNC. To do so, simply subtract the non-SNC indicator from 100%.

The non-SNC indicators in this report represent the conditions found at inspected facilities or at facilities that submitted compliance reports to EPA and states. These non-SNC indicators may not be reflective of the overall compliance rates for all federal facilities. In fact, non-SNC indicators may both over- and under-represent the level of compliance in the overall universe due to the following:

- First, EPA and states target inspections at facilities suspected of having compliance problems; few inspections are done randomly. To the extent that non-SNC indicators are based on inspections at facilities thought to have compliance problems, they may not reflect compliance at all federal facilities, resulting in an over-representation of violation frequency.
- Second, non-SNC indicators only reflect the percentage of facilities without any “significant” violations; these indicators do not include other types of lesser violation. A facility may have numerous violations but if none are classified as “significant”, the facility will still meet the definition of “non-SNC”. Thus, non-SNC indicators could under-represent the frequency of violations in the general universe.

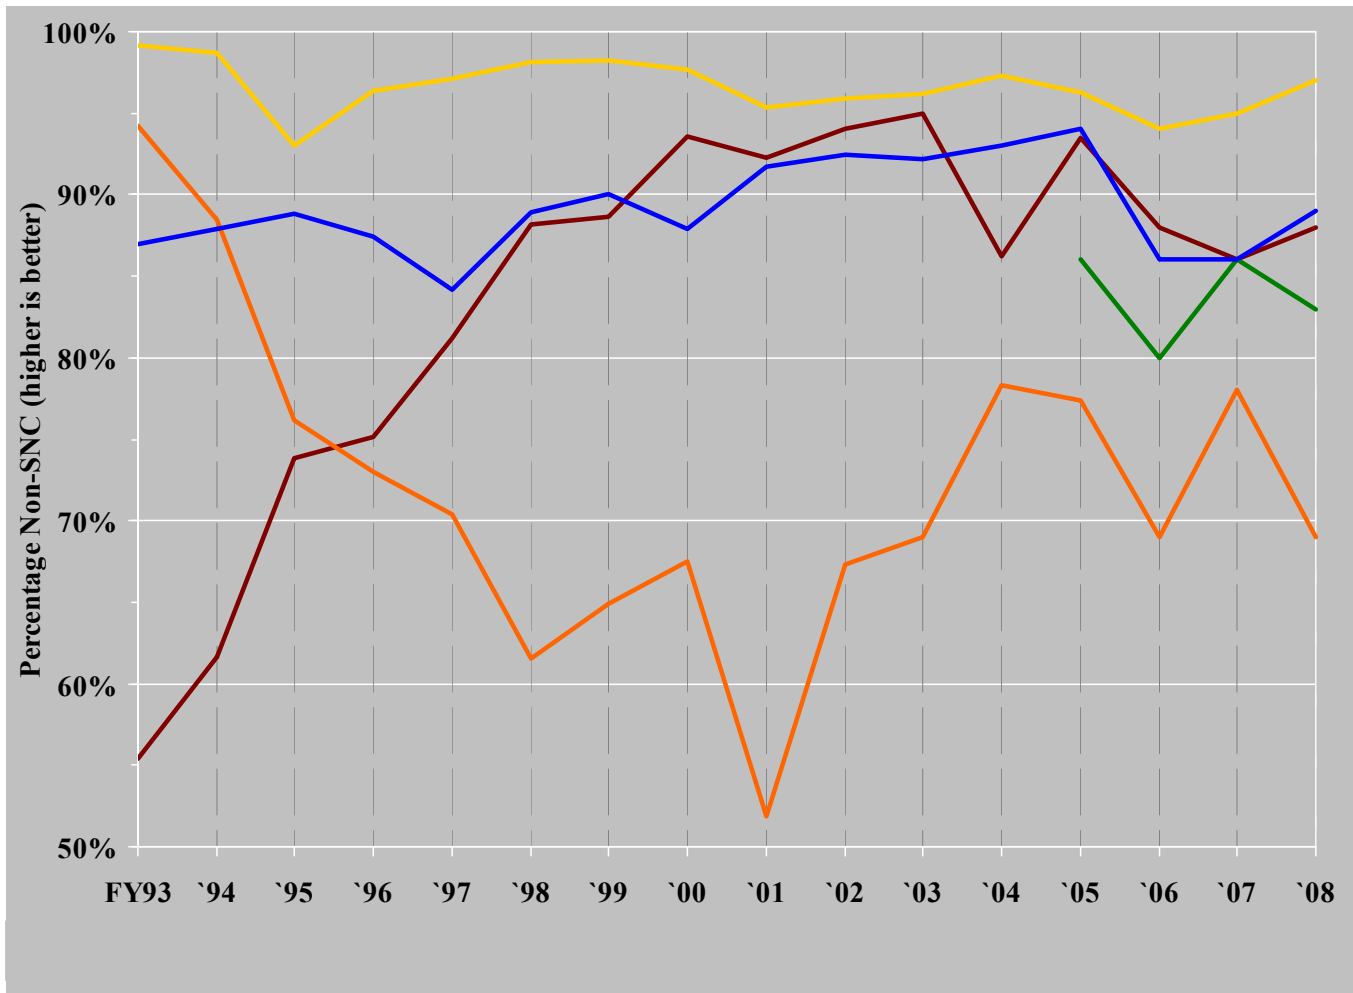

Even with these limitations, non-SNC indicators, based on information obtained by on-site EPA and state inspections and from facilitysubmitted reports, are useful in gauging the compliance status of larger facilities with the most important environmental requirements. Larger facilities are, in general, inspected more regularly than smaller facilities.

Non-SNC indicators should also be viewed in context of both the universe of facilities regulated under each regulatory program and the number of inspections conducted by EPA and states. For example, if the universe of facilities is large but inspections are few, the non-SNC indicator may not fully represent the general level of compliance by federal facilities.

Figure 3: Non-SNC Indicators by program between 1993 to 2008 (higher percentages are better).⁷ For detailed data, please refer to Appendix III.

⁷ For an explanation of each of the non-SNC indicators and a listing of each facility in SNC, please refer to Appendix III.

Analysis of Non-SNC Indicators

The non-SNC indicators for four of the five enforcement programs were greater than 80% in FY08. The only program consistently below 80% is CWA-NPDES Major facilities, with an FY08 non-SNC indicator of 69%. The data also show that the non-SNC indicators for violations under CAA Majors, RCRA TSDFs, and SDWA/PWSS improved (are higher) from 2007 to 2008. However, the non-SNC indicator declined for both types of CWA indicators during this time period.

The graph shows a wide range of fluctuations in non-SNC indicators. It should be noted that the large percent variations can be due to a change of status in just a few facilities within a small sample size.

The federal non-SNC indicator is relatively comparable to the overall non-federal rates. However, in FY08 the federal rate was lower than the non-federal rate in all of the programs except SDWA/PWSS. Larger variations in the federal non-SNC indicators should be expected due to the much smaller universe size. For example, the universe size for the federal CWA-NPDES non-SNC indicator is 102 facilities, while the non-federal universe for that same program is 6,378 facilities. For a complete breakdown of non-SNC numbers by year and Agency, please refer to Appendix III.

EPA's Strategic Approach to Compliance Problems

EPA strategically focuses on specific areas in which compliance problems exist and in which EPA programs can make improvements. EPA's national enforcement and compliance strategic plans, including EPA's federal facilities plans, can be viewed at the Office of

Enforcement and Compliance Assurance National Program Manager Guidance.

In recent years, EPA has focused on improving environmental compliance under these areas:

- Wastewater Compliance
- Underground Storage Tanks (USTs) Compliance
- Federal Laboratories
- Stormwater Management

Future Strategy Areas

- In FY 2009, EPA has identified two new integrated strategy areas. The strategy areas are:
 - Compliance with RCRA other than the TSD requirements and UST (which is already the focus of an existing Integrated Strategy),
 - Working with the Bureau of Prisons to ensure compliance at federal prison facilities.

Online Compliance Information:

Compliance information is available online to the general public through EPA's Environmental Compliance History Online \(ECHO\) which contains five years of compliance and enforcement information on approximately 800,000 regulated facilities, including federal facilities.

To help federal agency staff manage their operations that impact the environment, EPA's Online Tracking Information System \(OTIS\) grants access to compliance and enforcement information on several thousand federal facilities with RCRA-HW, CWA/NPDES, and CAA-Stationary Source permits to federal employees. Users can view compliance and enforcement actions by agency and identify facility-specific inspection information. To register, please visit OTIS' Authorization Status page.

Enforcing Environmental Laws

EPA enforcement actions against federal facilities are typically administrative actions. In prosecuting and settling enforcement actions, EPA seeks to have the alleged violator pay a monetary fine, deter the violator from future violations, implement repairs or upgrade pollution control technologies, correct compliance problems or clean up waste, and/or take action to reduce pollution or prevent problems from reoccurring.

Most administrative enforcement actions are resolved by settlements agreed to by both parties. When EPA or states order a facility to take certain actions to return to compliance, it is called an “administrative compliance order.” EPA and states also seek/require penalties from a defendant/respondent. These “administrative penalty orders” may also include requirements for the defendant/respondent to perform or refrain from certain actions.

While EPA and states inspect federal facilities under any of the environmental programs, the majority of the actions in 2008 are under RCRA Hazardous Waste and RCRA Underground Storage Tanks (UST) program.

Detailed information on EPA enforcement actions, including the involved facilities, is in Appendix IV.

Measuring Progress in Enforcing Environmental Laws

In prosecuting and settling enforcement actions against federal facilities, EPA seeks results which improve public health and the environment. Table 2 displays the environmental benefits which stemmed from enforcement actions in 2008 and other previous years. These benefits include preventing release of pollutants into the environment and improved management

(to prevent future violations). The details of the individual benefits associated with each of EPA’s 2008 enforcement actions are detailed in Appendix IV.

Penalties

Penalties involving federal facilities increased to over $1.3 million in 2008, more than $788,884 over the 2007 amount. This amount includes penalties under all major programs as well as stipulated penalties under the Superfund statute. The RCRA Underground Storage Tank (UST) program had the largest portion of penalties; while stormwater violations involving a construction contractor operating at a federal facility led to the year’s biggest individual non-Superfund penalty amount of $120,000.

UST violations were cited in 36 penalty orders (including “expedited settlements” or “field citations”) involving federal facilities in FY08, totaling $423,721 in penalties. Common violations were failure to perform release detection, failing to provide overfill protection, not having cathodic protection and testing or failure to upgrade tanks.

Compliance Orders

EPA issues “compliance orders” to regulated entities requiring them to return to compliance by taking specific actions. In 2008, EPA issued 18 compliance orders involving federal facilities. Seven of the orders were under SDWA, and required federal facilities to take such actions as completing required testing/monitoring, notification or installation of remediation equipment.

Compliance Action Costs

As a result of EPA enforcement actions, federal facilities agreed to take actions to return to compliance. The total EPA-estimated “cost of complying actions” for all non-Superfund penalty and compliance orders totaled over $23 million in 2008. This number varies greatly from year-to-year and is typically impacted directly by a few large cases. Seventeen and a half million dollars of this year’s $23 million dollar total came from one RCRA “imminent and substantial endangerment” order issued by EPA to the Air Force at Tyndall Air Force Base.

Supplemental Environmental Projects (SEPs)

EPA encourages violators to undertake Supplemental Environmental Projects (SEPs) designed to settle enforcement actions. SEPs are environmentally beneficial projects that a violator volunteers to perform as part of a settlement in addition to actions required to correct the violations. SEPs are beneficial to human health or the environment as well as to the communities where the harm occurred. A violator's commitment to perform a SEP may result in mitigation of the penalties assessed by EPA in return for environmental improvements going directly to the community.

Like penalties, SEPs can vary greatly from year to year. In 2008, the Department of Energy agreed to perform three separate SEPs at its Hanford facility in Region 10 (Seattle, WA). The first, which falls under CERCLA 109A, resulted in the donation of valuable HAZMAT equipment and software to the Tri-County Hazardous Materials Response Team (approximate value of $24,000). The remaining two SEPs, provided the Benton County Sheriff's Office with two emergency response boats (approximate value of $235,000) for use in Columbia River HAZMAT spills and the construction of a greenhouse and nursery facility at the Washington State University Tri-Cities campus (approximate value of $602,000). The project will help grow native vegetation for habitat rehabilitation.

Figure 4: Estimated value (dollars in thousands) and number of Supplemental Environmental Projects from actions related to federal facilities since 2003.

Stipulated Penalties

EPA assessed a stipulated penalty against the Department of Energy (DOE) in FY08 for failing to perform cleanup work at the Hanford Nuclear site in Washington. DOE agreed to pay a $285,000 penalty as well as the SEPs described above. Other stipulated penalty actions include DOE paying a $75,000 penalty in a separate action for missing cleanup deadlines and the U.S. Navy paying $153,000 for failing to properly monitor wells at the Superfund site in Brunswick Naval Air Station (Maine).

EPA's Compliance Incentives Policy

Region 3's Federal Prison Initiative is leading to improved compliance at 16 Federal prison facilities. In an inspection of the Federal Prison in Lewisburg, PA, the Federal Facilities Program noted several violations and brought them to the attention of the prison superintendent. The violations seemed to stem from a pattern of unsound environmental practices in water, RCRA, underground storage tanks and other areas. This discovery led to the superintendent's agreement to enable prison staff to conduct a self-audit. In June 2007, following a great deal of preparatory planning and negotiation, EPA Region 3 entered into a self-audit agreement with the U.S. Department of Justice, Bureau of Prisons, providing for the multi-media assessment of 16 Bureau of Prisons facilities within Region 3 located in Pennsylvania (9), Maryland (1), Virginia (1), and West Virginia (5).

The purpose of the Audit Policy is to enhance protection of human health and the environment by encouraging regulated entities to voluntarily discover, promptly disclose and expeditiously correct violations of Federal environmental requirements. Incentives that EPA makes available for those who meet the terms of the Audit Policy include the elimination or substantial reduction of the gravity component of civil penalties and a determination not to recommend criminal prosecution of the disclosing entity.

EPA has outlined the necessary conditions for these incentives in the policy document: “Incentives for Self-Policing: Discovery, Disclosure, Correction and Prevention of Violations”

Cleaning Up Contamination

Superfund Enforcement

EPA is responsible under law and Presidential Executive Order for overseeing cleanup of contamination at federal facility NPL sites. EPA's goal is to ensure the cleanups are implemented properly and protective of human health and the environment. Generally, these cleanups are governed under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (CERCLA).

There are over 150 "final" federal facility sites on the Superfund National Priority List (NPL). CERCLA requires EPA and the federal agency that owns or operates sites on this list to enter into enforceable agreements governing the cleanup and laying out of each party's responsibilities. Most federal facility NPL sites have such agreements in place. In FY05 through FY08, EPA signed agreements covering 11 sites. Three of these sites were in 2008, which included signed agreements between EPA and the Department of Interior, US Navy, US Coast Guard, and Department of Energy, and US Army. At the end of 2008, 12 NPL sites which are required to have an FFA in place did not have agreements.

Table 3: FFAs Signed in FY08

Curtis Bay Coast Guard Yard (Baltimore, MD)	DHS-USCG	9/11/2008
Fort Eustis (Fort Eustis, VA)	DOD-USARMY	3/25/2008

The number of federal facility RODs counted towards these environmental benefit metrics decreased over the past three fiscal years while the estimated costs from complying actions actually increased. While the number of RODs each year partially drive the overall estimated costs of complying actions, there are other factors involved influencing the overall cost that are mainly site specific. For example, two RODs from Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory and Fort Ord (both in California) account for nearly $800,000,000 in complying action costs alone. The estimated cubic yard of contaminated soil/groundwater treated, contained, or removed are also site specific, varying greatly from year to year.

Estimated Cubic Yards of Contaminated Groundwater Treated Contained or Removed	852,581,894	297,859,833	106,894,840

 In 2008, environmental benefits and costs from additional actions such as ROD amendments, "Explanations of Significant Differences" and other types of CERCLA actions are included in overall totals for the first time.

Issuing Imminent and Substantial Endangerment Unilateral Orders

Tyndall Air Force Base in Florida is a Superfund site where EPA found an imminent and substantial endangerment due to contamination in ground and surface water and in soil and sediments at the base. The ground water is used for drinking and nearby Shoal Bayou is used for recreational fishing and wading and has sensitive ecological resources. Because of this endangerment, EPA issued a RCRA order requiring the Air Force to investigate contamination at the base and take action to clean it up.

Compliance Monitoring

Most environmental programs rely on some form of inspections as the principal tool for determining compliance. The level of effort associated with these inspections varies depending on the specific requirements addressed, the size and complexity of the facility operations and the type and amount of data required to assess compliance. EPA's regional offices and their state counterparts consult with each other to efficiently plan and carry out inspections and monitoring programs. Inspections are commonly targeted toward facilities suspected of violating environmental laws and regulations.

EPA and State Inspections

Beginning in FY07, the Federal Facilities Enforcement Program made several important changes in how it counts inspections under the CAA Stationary Source, CWA NPDES, and RCRA Hazardous Waste (HW) programs. Overall, this resulted in a large “artificial” increase in the number of EPA and state inspections at federal facilities in 2007 and 2008 compared to prior years. This is why the 2007 inspection numbers are presented in Table 5 showing both the “unadjusted” (inspection totals using new methodology) and the “adjusted” (inspection totals consistent with methodology from prior years). After isolating for changes in methodology and adjusting the 2008 numbers to match prior year methodology, the number of inspections for states would have risen slightly while EPA inspections would have decreased slightly.

Additionally, the federal facilities program also began tracking EPA inspections under other environmental programs starting with FY06. Because of these differences, results are split into two different sections.

Inspections under CAA, CWA NPDES, and RCRA HW

With the change in methodology, this resulted in a large overall “artificial” increase in the number of EPA and state inspections at federal facilities between 2007 and prior years. Prior year numbers are presented for reference purposes only and the 2008 results should not be compared to numbers from 2006 and before.

EPA and states monitor or inspect federal facilities under several environmental statutes. Some of the major statutes and programs include:

Clean Air Act \(CAA\) – Stationary Sources, Mobile sources, and Asbestos

Clean Water Act \(CWA\) –NPDES, Wet Weather, Pretreatment and Section 311/Oil and Hazardous Substances Spills (or the Spill Prevention and Countermeasures) Program

Emergency Planning and Community Right-to-Know Act \(EPCRA\)

Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act \(FIFRA\)

Resource Conservation and Recovery Act \(RCRA\) – Hazardous Waste and the Underground Storage Tanks (UST) programs

Safe Drinking Water Act \(SDWA\) – Public Water Supply Systems, Underground Injection Control (UIC) and other rules

Toxics Substances and Control Act \(TSCA\) – Includes “Core” and Lead programs

Between 2007 and 2008, EPA inspections slightly increased by five percent under these three programs (204 inspections in FY07 vs. 215 inspections in FY08). This increase was mainly driven by increased inspections under the NPDES program. State inspections slightly decreased by approximately six percent (1,419 inspections in FY07 vs. 1,333 inspections in FY08), with the biggest decrease coming under the NPDES program (399 inspections in FY07 vs. 317 inspections in FY08).

EPA Inspections under All Other Programs

The Energy Policy Act of 2005 (E-Pact) established new statutory requirements specifically designed to improve the environmental management of federal facility underground storage tanks (USTs):

- 1) Reporting deadlines for federal agencies and states related to federal agency compliance with UST requirements;
- 2) Inspection deadlines for EPA and states to inspect federal facility USTs; and

3) Waiver of sovereign immunity which bolstered state enforcement authority.

EPA's federal facilities program created an integrated strategy to improve environmental management of federal facility USTs. The integrated strategy includes activities related to meeting inspection and reporting requirements along with compliance assistance and enforcement. The UST inspection program is the biggest EPA inspection program at federal facilities by number of inspections. Other major inspection programs at federal facilities include the Spill Prevention and Control Countermeasures (SPCC) under the CWA as well as the Safe Drinking Water Act's Underground Injection Control (UIC).

EPA Inspections by Federal Agency

Typically, EPA conducts the majority of its inspections at Department of Defense (DOD) facilities. In 2008, approximately 50% of EPA-led and state-led inspections (state-led under RCRA-HW, CWA-NPDES, and CAA Stationary Source only) at federal facilities took place at DOD locations.

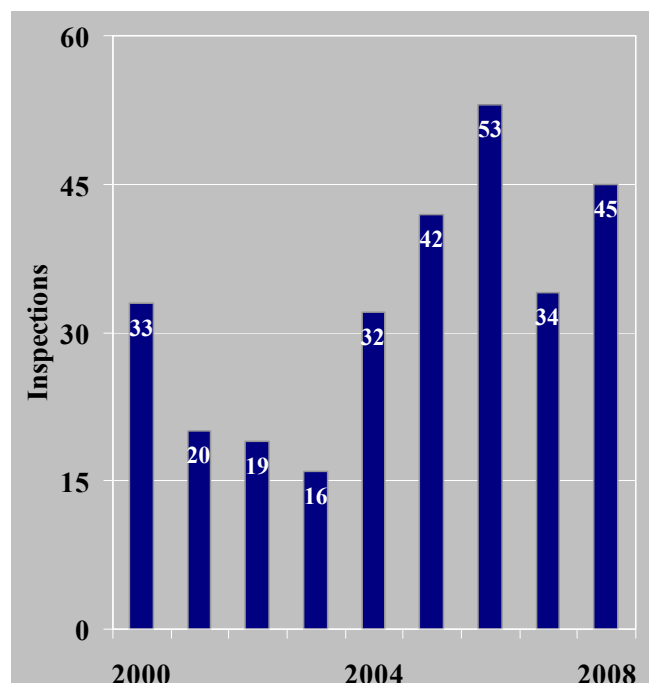

Inspections at a particular civilian federal agency vary greatly by statute. Under SDWA UIC, many of the 2008 inspections took place at national parks and national forests. While most inspections at DOD and CFAs are under the UST program, DOE facilities were mostly inspected under the RCRA-HW program. The remaining category, labeled "Other", consists of inspections at contract-operated facilities or BIA schools.

Multimedia Inspections

Most inspections by EPA and states focus on compliance within one environmental law or regulatory program. However, some inspections cover a number of environmental programs. These multimedia inspections, conducted by teams of expert inspectors, can have a significant positive impact. The inspectors can focus on compliance at the whole facility which provides a facility a better picture of its overall compliance.

Figure 6: Multimedia Inspections by Fiscal Year. These are inspections from Table/Figure 5 that qualify as multimedia inspections; they are not additional inspections.

Compliance Assistance and Environmental Management Systems

In order to improve compliance with environmental laws and regulations, EPA gives various kinds of technical assistance to federal facilities to help them better understand and comply with environmental laws. Over the last several years, the federal facility sector has been a primary beneficiary of EPA assistance work.

This outreach comes in many forms. Most common are:

- Presenting workshops and training classes,
- Responding to inquiries from federal facility staff and managers via hotlines, telephone or emails,
- Developing and publishing compliance guides, especially ones to help federal facilities improve their environmental management systems and tying their EMSs to compliance requirements, and
- Providing online assistance on regulatory and Executive Order requirements. This is increasingly done via FedCenter.gov, the environmental stewardship and compliance assistance center just for federal facilities.

335 federal participants attended 13 EPA-sponsored workshops covering compliance assistance topics for federal laboratories. 115 (or 37%) of the attendees were from the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA). The workshops were located in different parts of the country and took place over a 10 month period between 2007 and 2008. Topics included compliance with the major environmental statutes (mainly RCRA) specific to labs, and overviews of environmental management systems (EMSs) and pollution prevention.

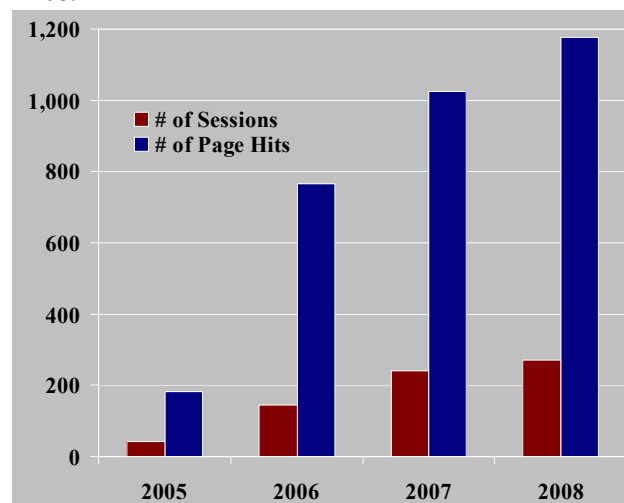

All attendees were asked to complete a questionnaire at the end of the workshop regarding what they learned and what actions they will take as a result of the training. Over 90% of attendees responded that they gained a greater understanding of environmental regulations as a result of the labs.

FedCenter.gov

In recent years, EPA expanded its assistance to other federal agencies, primarily through the expansion of FedCenter.gov, the internet-based compliance assistance and environmental stewardship center just for federal agencies. FedCenter.gov's goal is to provide comprehensive environmental stewardship and compliance assistance information for federal facilities. FedCenter collects the best technical materials available throughout the federal government for all users to access. The site is managed by the Construction Engineering Research Laboratory at the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and governed by a multi-agency Advisory Board. Funding is drawn from EPA, VA, DHS, NIH, DOE, USPS, DOI, TREASURY, NASA, and TVA.

In 2008, EPA offered nine two-day UST workshops across the country.⁸ FedCenter was used for registration and for passing key information. FedCenter has also helped federal agencies meet important statutory and Administration mandates through streamlining reporting requirements. It created a process for federal facilities to report the compliance status of all their underground storage tanks (required by the Energy Policy Act of 2005) and to report progress in implementing environmental management systems (required under Executive Order 131458). FedCenter saw its support expand through 2008 with the providing financial support and substantive content to the center. This collective approach involving various federal agencies helps FedCenter serve the needs of many agencies which have widely different missions and responsibilities.

Online Training Opportunities

In conjunction with the EPA, FedCenter is now offering free, web-based, on-demand training courses for Federal employees. Initial environmental compliance training specific to Federal Laboratories, Environmental Management Systems, and Underground Storage Tanks is now or will be offered, and the library will expand over time to include other topic area. FedCenter membership is required to view these courses.

Appendix II – Sources and Suitability of Environmental Information

The information contained in this report is drawn from several different sources including EPA's national databases and manually reported data submitted each year from the Regions to EPA Headquarters. Each year EPA's Office of Enforcement and Compliance Assurance (OECA) provides an enforcement and compliance reporting plan memorandum to EPA Headquarters and Regional personnel that establishes the process and deadlines for reporting, reviewing and certifying information for enforcement, compliance activities and results for each fiscal year.

In addition, the Assistant Administrator for OECA also issues the National Program Managers (NPM) Guidance which outlines OECA's core program activities and their associated commitments as well as specific guidance on data quality and reporting.⁹ Both the reporting plan memorandum and the NPM Guidance instruct and direct EPA personnel to report required information into EPA-designated databases-of-record or into designated workbooks to ensure enforcement and compliance monitoring data are completely and accurately reported. The data presented in this document are obtained from the databases-of-record and workbooks as designated by the NPM Guidance and the reporting plan memorandum. The data-source is cited for each table and exhibit displayed in this report.

Between FY2005-FY2008, permit information, inspections and SNC records were entered into different databases of records according to program. These databases include:

- RCRAInfo: Allows cradle-to-grave waste tracking specific to the regulated universe of RCRA hazardous waste handlers.
- PCS: The Permit Compliance System tracks EPA regional and state compliance and enforcement data for the NPDES program under the CWA.
- AIRS/AFS: The Aerometric Information Retrieval System/AIRS Facility Subsystem manages aerometric compliance data on point sources tracked by EPA, state, and local governments in accordance with the CAA.
- SDWIS: The Safe Drinking Water Information System is a national database that tracks public water system supervision compliance and enforcement data collected by EPA, Regions, and states under the PWSS program of the SDWA.
- ICIS: The Integrated Compliance Information System tracks all EPA enforcement actions data and select compliance monitoring programs. It also houses a large portion of the EPA & state data for the CWA-NPDES program.

Description of Non-SNC compliance indicator by program.

Statute	Compliance Indicator
Clean Air Act (CAA)	Percent of major federal Stationary Sources not cited for high priority violations (HPV). The compliance indicator for CAA is measured only at major facilities primarily because of data quality issues. States are not required to provide data on minor facilities to their respective national data systems, and many do not. Thus, compliance data for minor CAA facilities is incomplete.
Clean Water Act (CWA)	Percent of NPDES major federal facilities not in significant noncompliance (non-SNC). The CWA NPDES program requires facilities to submit Discharge Monitoring Reports (DMRs) periodically to states and EPA. DMRs contain information on the facility's water discharges over the prior period. The non-SNC indicators in this report are derived in part from the data in DMRs as well as information obtained from the inspections. This indicator reflects violations of both reporting requirements (such as failure to submit a DMR or submitting an incomplete DMR) as well as violations of effluent limits by regulated facilities.
	Percent of NPDES major federal facilities not in significant noncompliance (non-SNC) for effluent violations. These effluent SNCs are a subset of all CWA SNCs (see indicator immediately above). To better track violations of effluent limits, EPA began calculating a compliance indicator in 2005 just for CWA effluent violations deemed to be SNCs.
	Similar to the CAA, the compliance indicator for CWA is measured only at major facilities because of data quality issues. States are not required to provide data on minor facilities to their respective national data systems, and many do not. Thus, compliance data for minor CWA facilities is incomplete.
Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA)	Percent of inspected federal treatment, storage or disposal facilities (TSDFs), federal Large Quantity Generators (LQGs), and federal Small Quantity Generators (SQGs) not in significant noncompliance (non-SNC). In the case of RCRA, non-SNC indicators are based on inspection data. However, only a portion of RCRA facilities are inspected in any given year. This is especially true for transporters, SQGs, and LQGs. A significant percent of SQGs have never been inspected. In contrast, most federal TSDFs are inspected at least once a year.
Safe Drinking Water Act (SDWA)	Percent of active federal public water systems not in significant noncompliance (non-SNC). The non-SNC indicator includes the number of active federal public water systems that are non-SNC over the number of active federal public water systems.

Notes:

1. Includes federally reportable active federal facilities with a qualifying inspection in FY08 that were in SNC. CAA facilities included are: majors, synthetic minors, and federally-reportable minors. Qualifying CAA inspections: EPA conducted FCE/On-Site (FE), EPA conducted FCE/Off-Site (FZ), EPA conducted Federal Air Toxics FCE/On-Site (AA), EPA conducted Federal Air Toxics FCE/Off-Site (AB), State conducted FCE/On-Site (FS), State conducted FCE/Off-Site (FF). This differs from FY07, which included EPA conducted Federal Air Toxics FCE/On-Site (AA) and EPA conducted Federal Air Toxics FCE/Off-Site (AB) within inspection types EPA conducted FCE/On-Site (FE) and EPA conducted FCE/Off-Site (FZ). Violation codes that trigger CAA HPV status are: Unaddressed, Shared Lead (EPA and state) (B), Addressed, Shared Lead (EPA and state) (C), Unaddressed, EPA Lead (E), Addressed, EPA Lead (F), Unaddressed, State Lead (S), Addressed, State Lead (T), Unaddressed, Lead Undetermined (X).
2. For FY08, a federal facility was included based on flags contained within the legacy systems (e.g., AFS, RCRA) and FRS. This does not differ from FY07.
3. Includes SNCs triggered by EPA and state inspections.
4. The non-SNC rates in this report represent the conditions found at inspected facilities or at facilities that submitted compliance reports to EPA and states. These non-SNC rates may not be reflective of the overall compliance rates for all federal facilities. In fact, non-SNC rates may both over-represent and under-represent the level of compliance in the overall universe.
 - a. First, EPA and states target inspections toward facilities suspected of having compliance problems; few inspections are done randomly. To the extent that non-SNC rates are based on inspections at facilities thought to have compliance problems (and most are), they may not reflect compliance at all federal facilities. Thus, non-SNC rates probably over-represent the frequency of violations in the general universe.
 - b. Second, non-SNC rates only reflect the percentage of facilities that do not have "significant" violations; they do not reflect all violations. A facility may have numerous violations but none of them are classified as significant. Thus, non-SNC rates probably under-represent the frequency of violations in the general universe.

Notes:

1. Includes federally reportable active federal facilities with a qualifying inspection in FY08 that were in SNC. RCRA handlers included are: TSDFs, LQGs, SQGs, CESQGs, and active other.
 - a. Qualifying RCRA inspections:
 - corrective action compliance evaluation,
 - case development inspection,
 - compliance evaluation inspection,
 - compliance schedule evaluation,
 - focused compliance,
 - financial record review,
 - groundwater monitoring evaluation,
 - non-financial record review,
 - operation and maintenance inspection, and
 - follow-up inspection
 1. This differs from FY07, which did not include follow-up inspections.
 - b. Violation codes that trigger RCRA SNC status are:
 - Facility is a Land Disposal facility (LDF) with an unresolved groundwater, financial responsibility, or closure/post closure violation determined between 10/01/86 and 9/30/88 (1A),
 - Facility is a LDF or Treatment/Storage facility (TSF) with an unresolved compliance schedule violation determined between 10/01/86 and 9/30/88 (1B),
 - Facility is a LDF or TSF with an unresolved significant violation determined between 10/01/88 and 9/30/90 (2),
 - Facility has an unresolved significant violation determined between 10/01/90 and 9/30/96 (3),
 - Facility has at least one unresolved violation determined between 10/01/96 and 3/31/97, and was not in compliance with its compliance schedule at the end of the second quarter FY '97 (4A),
 - Facility has an unresolved significant violation determined between 10/01/96 and 3/31/97 (4B),

- Facility has a significant violation determined after 4/01/97, OR the facility has at least one unresolved violation and is not in compliance with its compliance schedule at the end of the second quarter FY '97 (5).
- 2. For FY08, a federal facility was included based on flags contained within the legacy systems (e.g., AFS, RCRA) and FRS. This does not differ from FY07.
- 3. Includes SNCs triggered by EPA and state inspections.
- 4. The non-SNC rates in this report represent the conditions found at inspected facilities or at facilities that submitted compliance reports to EPA and states. These non-SNC rates may not be reflective of the overall compliance rates for all federal facilities. In fact, non-SNC rates may both over-represent and under-represent the level of compliance in the overall universe.
 - a. First, EPA and states target inspections toward facilities suspected of having compliance problems; few inspections are done randomly. To the extent that non-SNC rates are based on inspections at facilities thought to have compliance problems (and most are), they may not reflect compliance at all federal facilities. Thus, non-SNC rates probably over-represent the frequency of violations in the general universe.
 - b. Second, non-SNC rates only reflect the percentage of facilities that do not have “significant” violations; they do not reflect all violations. A facility may have numerous violations but none of them are classified as significant. Thus, non-SNC rates probably under-represent the frequency of violations in the general universe.

Source: EPA's Integrated Database for Enforcement Analysis (IDEA), February 2009 refresh. For FY08, the number of CAA inspections reflects the number of full compliance evaluations. This does not differ from FY07.

Notes:

1. All facilities are included when there was an inspection. This includes non-federally reportable facilities. It should be noted that information on non-federally reportable facilities could be limited as states are not required to report such information to EPA.
2. For FY08, a federal facility was included based on flags contained within the legacy systems (e.g., AFS, RCRA) and FRS. This does not differ from criteria used in FY07.
3. Included EPA and state inspections under CAA are as follows: EPA conducted FCE/On-Site (FE), EPA conducted FCE/Off-Site (FZ), EPA conducted Federal Air Toxics FCE/On-Site (AA), EPA conducted Federal Air Toxics FCE/Off-Site (AB), State conducted FCE/On-Site (FS), State conducted FCE/Off-Site (FF). This differs from FY07, which included FY08's Federal Air Toxics FCE/On-Site and Off-Site inspections within the FY07 inspection types FE or FZ.

Notes:

1. All facilities are included when there was an inspection. This includes facilities with a minor NPDES permit. It should be noted that information on minor permit activity could be limited as states are not required to report such information to EPA.
2. For FY08, a federal facility was included based on flags contained within the legacy systems (e.g., AFS, RCRA) and FRS. This does not differ from criteria used in FY07.
3. Included EPA and state inspections under CWA are as follows: audit, biomonitoring, diagnostic, evaluation, follow-up, oversight, reconnaissance with sampling, reconnaissance without sampling, sampling, and toxics.

Key:

CFA = Civilian Federal Agencies

DOD = Department of Defense

DOE = Department of Energy

Other = Federal Agencies other than DOD, DOE, or CFAs

Notes:

1. All facilities are included when there was an inspection. This includes facilities with a minor NPDES permit. It should be noted that information on minor permit activity could be limited as states are not required to report such information to EPA.
2. For FY08, a federal facility was included based on flags contained within the legacy systems (e.g., AFS, RCRA) and FRS. This does not differ from criteria used in FY07.
3. Included EPA and state inspections under are as follows: audit, biomonitoring, diagnostic, evaluation, follow-up, oversight, reconnaissance with sampling, reconnaissance without sampling, sampling, and toxics.

Key:

CFA = Civilian Federal Agencies

DOD = Department of Defense

DOE = Department of Energy

Other = Federal Agencies other than DOD, DOE, or CFAs

RCRA Other are those facilities not defined as TSDFs, LQGs, SQGs, or CESQGs. This includes "Transporters" and facilities without a designation.

Notes:

1. All facilities are included when there was an inspection. This includes Transporters and facilities without a handler designation, as well as inactive (e.g., closed) facilities. It should be noted that information on non-federally reportable permit activity could be limited as states are not required to report such information to EPA.
2. For FY08, a federal facility was included based on flags contained within the legacy systems (e.g., AFS, RCRA) and FRS. This does not differ from criteria used in FY07.
3. Included EPA and state inspections under RCRA are as follows: corrective action compliance evaluation, case development inspection, compliance evaluation inspection, compliance schedule evaluation, focused compliance, financial record review, groundwater monitoring evaluation, non-financial record review, operation and maintenance inspection, and follow-up inspection. This differs from FY07, which did not include follow-up inspections.

Key:

CFA = Civilian Federal Agencies

DOD = Department of Defense

DOE = Department of Energy

Other = Federal Agencies other than DOD, DOE, or CFAs

Notes:

1. All facilities are included when there was an inspection. This includes Transporters and facilities without a handler designation, as well as inactive (e.g., closed) facilities. It should be noted that information on non-federally reportable permit activity could be limited as states are not required to report such information to EPA.
2. For FY08, a federal facility was included based on flags contained within the legacy systems (e.g., AFS, RCRA) and FRS. This does not differ from criteria used in FY07.
3. Included EPA and state inspections under RCRA are as follows: corrective action compliance evaluation, case development inspection, compliance evaluation inspection, compliance schedule evaluation, focused compliance, financial record review, groundwater monitoring evaluation, non-financial record review, operation and maintenance inspection, and follow-up inspection. This differs from FY07, which did not include follow-up inspections.
